Singapore shares close flat ahead of Fed interest rate decision

Across the broader market, losers beat gainers 243 to 238, after 1b securities worth S$1 billion change hands. BY BENJAMIN CHER

SINGAPORE stocks ended lower on Wednesday (Dec 10), ahead of a policy decision by the US Federal Reserve.

The benchmark Straits Times Index (STI) was flat, shedding 1.34 points to close at 4,511.90.

The iEdge Singapore Next 50 Index lost 0.1 per cent or 1.56 points, ending the day at 1,435.02.

The three local banks had a mixed showing.

OCBC led the gainers on Singapore's blue-chip index, rising 0.9 per cent or S$0.16 to end at S$18.95. DBS was flat at S$54.12, while UOB finished 0.3 per cent or S$0.10 lower at S$34.18.

The worst performer among STI constituents was DFI Retail, falling 2 per cent or US$0.08 to close at US$3.99.

The top performer on the iEdge Singapore Next 50 was iFast, which rose 2.9 per cent or S$0.27 to S$9.57. The index's biggest loser was Nanofilm, which was down 2.5 per cent or S$0.015 at S$0.585.

Across the broader market, losers outnumbered gainers 243 to 238 after one billion securities worth S$1 billion changed hands.

Key regional indices were mixed on Wednesday. Hong Kong's Hang Seng Index gained 0.4 per cent, while Japan's Nikkei 225 index lost 0.1 per cent, South Korea's Kospi was down 0.2 per cent and the FTSE Bursa Malaysia KLCI shed 0.2 per cent.

Equities remain "mixed and languid" as the Fed starts its two-day meeting, said Neil Wilson, UK investor strategist at Saxo Bank. This is amid a bond market sell-off that has taken on bets that global central banks are turning hawkish rather than dovish.

"Wall Street edged lower yesterday in cautious trade," Wilson noted. "Alphabet and Meta dipped while Nvidia, Microsoft and Broadcom rose."

Hong Kong's Hang Seng Index gained 0.4%, Japan's Nikkei 225 lost 0.1% and South Korea's Kospi was down 0.2%.

US dollar slips vs euro, yen with all eyes on Powell

THE greenback edged down versus the euro and the yen on Wednesday (Dec 10) as investors awaited the Federal Reserve policy meeting later in the day which is expected to deliver a so-called hawkish rate cut.

Investors expect Fed chair Jerome Powell to provide some sort of restrictive guidance after announcing a 25 bp rate cut.

"The Fed Board is the most divided it has been in five years, with two almost evenly split camps. Six members lean towards easing, including two with Make America Great Again affiliations, and six lean towards holding rates unchanged," Kevin Thozet, a member of the investment committee at Carmignac, said.

"Should, as we and markets expect, Powell deliver a 25-basis-point cut to satisfy the doves, he will likely accompany it with a more restrictive message to reassure the hawks."

Investors have pared expectations of rate cuts in 2026 on lingering inflation concerns and expectations of a more resilient US economy.

Data on Tuesday showed US job openings increased marginally in October after surging in September, suggesting the labour market is cooling.

White House economic adviser Kevin Hassett, the front-runner to be the Federal Reserve's next chair, told the WSJ CEO Council on Tuesday there was "plenty of room" to cut interest rates further, though he added that if inflation rose, the calculation might change.

Strong economic data and comments from European Central Bank (ECB) policymaker Isabel Schnabel – who said a rate hike was more likely than a cut – led investors on Monday to price out an ECB rate cut in 2026 and assign more than a 50 per cent probability of a hike in March 2027.

The euro rose 0.10 per cent to US$1.1640 as investors focused on its gap with US bond yields and saw little chance of a significant drop in eurozone rates in the near term.

"ECB's Schnabel validated the investors expect Powell to provide some sort of restrictive guidance after announcing a 25 bp rate cut.

hawkish expectations of the market on increased adoption of AI technologies and public investments pushing the neutral rate higher," said Andrea Appeddu, strategist at Citi, before flagging that the two-year euro short-term rate overnight index swap recorded its biggest daily rise in six months early this week.

ECB president Christine Lagarde said on Wednesday the central bank might lift its growth projections again in December given the economy's unexpected resilience to uncertainty and trade tensions.

Markets monitored developments in Ukraine, while the European Union neared a deal to fund Kyiv in 2026 and 2027 that would win backing from at least a qualified majority of member states.

The yen was up 0.12 per cent at 156.72 per dollar, after a 0.6 per cent fall towards the 157 level in the previous session. Against the euro, the Japanese currency sank to a record low overnight at 182.64 and was last down 0.05 per cent at 182.00.

"The yen should find sufficient support ahead of the upcoming BOJ decision, but its policy space will be shaped as much by domestic politics and fiscal aspects as by global (rate) differentials," said Geoff Yu, EMEA macro strategist at BNY.

The BOJ meets next week and is expected to raise interest rates. REUTERS
