Singapore shares rise amid mixed regional trading; STI up 0.6%

Across the broader market, gainers beat losers 336 to 238, after 2.1b securities worth S$3.2b change hands. BY TAN NAI LUN

LOCAL stocks ended higher on Monday (Nov 24) amid mixed trading in the region.

The benchmark Straits Times Index (STI) gained 0.6 per cent or 27.49 points to finish at 4,496.63. The iEdge Singapore Next 50 Index lost 1.2 per cent or 16.82 points to 1,438.67. Across the broader market, gainers outnumbered losers 336 to 238, after 2.1 billion securities worth S$3.2 billion changed hands.

Key regional indices were mixed. Hong Kong's Hang Seng Index gained 2 per cent and the FTSE Bursa Malaysia KLCI rose 0.1 per cent. South Korea's Kospi fell 0.2 per cent.

Paul Chew, head of research at Phillip Securities Research, noted several positive news items for the equity market in Singapore. Singapore "drastically raised" its 2025 gross domestic product growth forecast to around 4 per cent from 1.5 to 2.5 per cent, as manufacturing was more resilient than expected, and retail and accommodation picked up pace.

Chew also noted the announcement of the second batch of asset managers for the Equity Market Development Programme. The liquidity is "focused on small and mid-cap stocks, thereby providing a boost to valuations", he said.

"We think the recent weakness is a buying opportunity before liquidity and momentum build back up for small mid-cap stocks," Chew added.

Leading gains on the STI was Jardine Matheson Holdings, which rose 8.7 per cent or US$5.41 to US$67.56.

The worst performer was Singapore Exchange, which fell 1.1 per cent or S$0.18 to S$16.54.

The three local banks had a mixed showing. OCBC rose 0.1 per cent or S$0.01 to S$18.08 and UOB was up 0.1 per cent or S$0.04 at S$33.89. DBS finished 0.5 per cent or S$0.29 lower at S$53.38.

CURRENCIES

Yen is worst performer against US dollar

THE Japanese currency was the worst performer against an otherwise weaker dollar on Monday (Nov 24), as investors watched for any signs of official buying from Tokyo to stem the pullback in the yen.

The dollar was last up 0.27 per cent on the Japanese currency at 156.8 yen, just shy of its 10-month high last week.

Japan's currency has been sliding on a combination of looser fiscal policies and some of the lowest interest rates in the world, prompting traders to ask whether Japanese authorities might step in to stop their currency weakening further.

However, the yen managed to gain some ground on Friday, bouncing from 10-month lows after Finance Minister Satsuki Katayama stepped up verbal intervention warnings to stem the currency's decline. Traders see a risk of intervention somewhere between 158 and 162 yen per dollar, with Thanksgiving-thinned trade later in the week a possible window for authorities to step in.

"The yen at the moment is caught between two factors. On the one hand, you have higher rates at the front end, with the BOJ continuing to hike, and on the other side the equation is the long end of the curve, which has been moving higher on potential fiscal downside risks," said Nick Rees, head of macro research at Monex Europe.

Higher long-end yields are a sign of trader worries about risks to the Japanese economy, and the scale of government stimulus plans and a negative for the yen. Japan can actively intervene in the currency market to mitigate the negative economic impact of a weak yen, Takuji Aida, a private-sector member of a key government panel, said in a television programme on public broadcaster

NHK on Sunday.

Rees said intervention would help slow the rise of the dollar against the yen but would not derail it completely, given that the dynamics underpinning such a move

The dollar was last up 0.27% on the Japanese currency at 156.8 yen, just shy of its 10-month high last week. PHOTO: REUTERS were unlikely to change anytime soon.

Elsewhere, the euro rose 0.2 per cent to US$1.1539, with the dollar hurt by comments from Fed policymaker John Williams, who said on Friday that interest rates can fall in the near term, bolstering the prospects of a cut in December.

"Fundamentally, we don't think the Fed is at the end of their easing cycle. We think there are more cuts coming but it is really a question of pace for us," Rees added.

Sterling was marginally softer at US$1.3088 ahead of Wednesday's budget announcement. Finance Minister Rachel Reeves is seeking a balance between spending to support faltering growth and demonstrating to investors that Britain can meet its fiscal targets.

That all left the dollar index steady at 100.12.

Markets were also gearing up for potential catalysts, including the release of US retail sales and producer prices data due later in the week.

The Australian dollar was at US$0.6457, with traders looking ahead to Wednesday's CPI reading, which will be the first full release of monthly price data. A Reuters poll showed weighted annual CPI is expected to be sticky at 3.6 per cent.

Cryptocurrency markets steadied over the weekend, but pressure resumed on Bitcoin in the Asia day, pulling it down 2.3 per cent to US$86,007. REUTERS
