Classic furniture with contemporary flair

By Amanda Ng

THE Meridiani brand of furniture was born out of a simple idea to design a home collection that was an interpretation of classic themes with a modern elegance.

Designed by Andrea Parisio, who attended the European Design Institute in Milan and graduated from the Academy of Fine Arts in Pavia, the Meridiani 2014 collection's contemporary designs can provide the perfect finishing touch for your new home. Meridiani furniture are made in Italy.

Ms Maria Teo, business development manager at Marquis Furniture Gallery said: "Meridiani is more than a furniture collection. It celebrates a sophisticated, timeless and yet casual lifestyle. It is a very liveable sort of luxury that I believe resonates with many of us living in Singapore."

The latest line up available at Marquis Furniture Gallery consists of pieces which stand the test of time and exude sophisticated yet relaxed elegance:

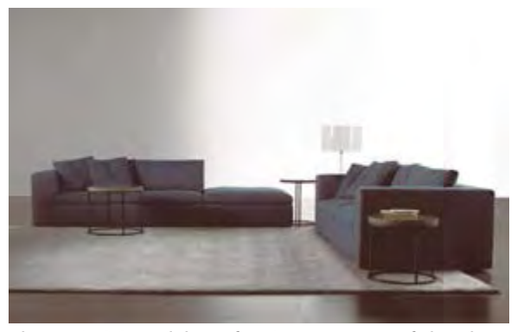

The Tautou armchair and the love seat are instant classics for your living room, exuding the contemporary elegance of a hotel lobby.

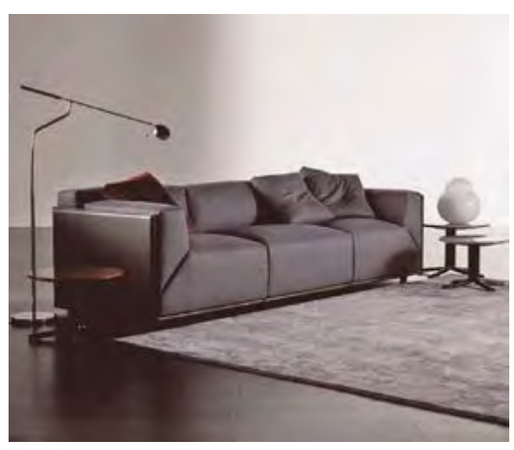

Loved for its sleek, angular lines, the Hardy collection now includes a bookcase wall unit and writing desk. These ideal work or study companions stand out for their striking lightness.

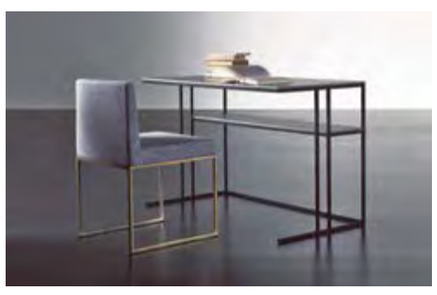

Norton, the new sofa comes in a basic form that does not compromise comfort.

The Lewis 2.0 modular sofa reinterprets one of their best-selling sofas with a sleeker profile and a more tailored look.

The Bacon modular seating system shows the same proportions and volume of the sofa fully upholstered in fabric with a saddle leather shell to create a sophisticated contrast in texture and colour.

The Keaton Fit small armchairs and love seat come without the visible wooden bases featured in the previous collection, making them a softer alternative.
