US dollar gains as Iran conflict fuels safe-haven demand

THE US dollar rose against the euro, yen and Swiss franc on Monday (Mar 2), lifted by higher energy prices and safe-haven bids after US and Israeli strikes in Iran heightened concerns about a prolonged conflict in the Middle East.

Investors are closely watching developments around shipping in the crucial Strait of Hormuz which was disrupted by retaliatory Iranian attacks. A sharp and prolonged rise in oil prices would severely hurt the economies of Japan and the euro area, which rely heavily on crude imports, while the United States would be relatively insulated, having been a net crude exporter for almost a decade.

"The reaction at the centre of everything is that of the oil market," said Thu Lan Nguyen, head of forex and commodity research at Commerzbank. "Even the news that some Opec+ countries will expand production more strongly next month than previously planned does little to change this (the economic impact of oil prices), given the fact that most of these countries have only very limited options to export their crude oil via alternative routes."

Barclays analysts estimated the greenback could strengthen by 0.5 per cent to 1 per cent for every 10 per cent increase in oil, arguing the escalation in Iran adds to recent dollar tailwinds via higher energy prices and risk aversion.

The Israeli military said that its air force had killed Iran's supreme leader Ali Khamenei and his death, at 86, was confirmed by Iranian state media, setting off a high-stakes succession race.

Attacks extended into Monday after Iran hit back, with the Iranian Revolutionary Guard saying it had struck three US and British oil tankers, while blasts were reported over Dubai and Doha.

The US dollar index, a measure of the greenback's value versus key trading partners, was 0.68 per cent higher at 98.31, after hitting 98.566, its strongest level since Jan 23.

Barclays analysts estimate the greenback could strengthen by 0.5% to 1% for every 10% increase in oil.

The Swiss National Bank said on Monday that it was more willing to intervene in foreign currency markets after the conflict in the Middle East.

The Swiss franc dropped 0.30 per cent to 0.9116 against the euro after hitting a fresh 11-year high at 0.9028. It dropped 1.10 per cent to 0.7775 against the greenback, but was trading not far from the decade-high of 0.7604 touched at the end of January.

The euro fell 0.82 per cent to US$1.1719, after reaching US$1.1698, its lowest since Jan 22.

Markets are also looking at a potential tightening of the European Central Bank monetary policy, with traders reducing their bets on future rate cuts, pricing in less than a 20 per cent chance of an easing move in December from around 40 per cent on Friday.

The yen weakened 0.69 per cent to 157.13 against the dollar after hitting 157.25 earlier, its lowest since Feb 9.

The risk-sensitive Australian dollar tumbled as much as 1.2 per cent before paring declines to 0.60 per cent and was last trading at US$0.7025.

China's yuan in offshore trade was 0.25 per cent weaker at 6.8861 to the dollar, as the People's Bank of China weakened its daily fixing price for the currency onshore to stem appreciation against the greenback. China is an energy importer and the main buyer of Iranian oil. REUTERS
