Singapore shares fall as Iran war weighs on Asian markets; STI down 2.1%

Across the broader market, losers outnumbered gainers 564 to 172, as 2.4b securities worth S$3.6b change hands. BY JUDE CHAN

SINGAPORE stocks fell on Wednesday (Mar 4) as the ongoing conflict in the Middle East rattled global markets and sent oil prices sharply higher.

The benchmark Straits Times Index (STI) fell 2.1 per cent or 103.9 points to close at 4,812.75.

This was in line with a sharp sell-off across key Asian markets.

South Korea's Kospi sank 12.1 per cent – the biggest drop in its 46-year history. Meanwhile, Japan's Nikkei 225 slid 3.6 per cent, Hong Kong's Hang Seng Index fell 2 per cent, and the FTSE Bursa Malaysia KLCI lost 0.8 per cent.

Across the broader Singapore market, losers outnumbered gainers 564 to 172, after 2.4 billion securities worth S$3.6 billion changed hands.

"Asia's sell-off is turning disorderly because markets are no longer treating this as a 'one-week headline shock'," said Saxo's chief investment strategist Charu Chanana.

She added that the pricing now "reflects a conflict that could drag on, with spillover risk rising rather than fading".

"The 'sell what you can' phase is spreading: Liquidity needs are pulling down even precious metals, which looks less like a clean rotation and more like de-leveraging and margin-driven selling across asset classes," she said.

DFI Retail Group was the sole gainer among Singapore's blue-chip index constituents.

The counter rose 3.9 per cent or US$0.16 to US$4.30.

The worst STI performer was Keppel, which fell 5.9 per cent or S$0.75 to S$12.

The trio of local banks all finished lower. DBS slipped 1.1 per cent or

S$0.60 to S$55, OCBC shed 1 per cent or S$0.21 to S$20.90, and UOB fell 1.4 per cent or S$0.51 to S$35.83.

Meanwhile, the iEdge Singapore Next 50 Index retreated 0.5 per cent or 7.34 points to close at 1,474.45.

US dollar firms as euro comes under pressure

THE US dollar held firm near three-month highs on Wednesday (Mar 4) with investors turning deeply bearish towards the euro as the conflict in the Middle East sparked fears of a sustained rise in energy prices and took a heavy toll on stock markets.

The euro edged up 0.2 per cent to US$1.16135, having earlier hit its weakest level since late November. That followed data released on Tuesday that showed eurozone inflation accelerated more quickly than expected in February, before the start of the Iran conflict.

A report in the New York Times on Wednesday that cited officials briefed on the matter saying Iran's Ministry of Intelligence signalled to the US Central Intelligence Agency openness to talks on ending the war injected a small note of optimism among investors that dragged on the dollar.

"Everyone is a bit nervy and a bit jittery and, understandably wanting to pounce, or overreact to any signs of optimism... however tentative," Pepperstone senior research strategist Michael Brown said.

The options market shows traders are at their most bearish towards the euro in at least a year, having flipped from an overwhelmingly bullish position just six weeks ago.

"We're still in a scenario where dollar selloffs are probably going to be short-lived and probably bought into because there is still a lot of negativity priced into most currencies, which are sensitive to energy prices," CIBC Capital Markets head of G10 FX strategy Jeremy Stretch said.

"And here in Europe, it's all about the natural gas prices," he said. "If there comes to be more of a supply, as well as a price, issue, then obviously that becomes much more problematic for the eurozone."

The cost of buying options to sell the euro against the dollar over the next three months against the cost of options to buy it is at its largest premium since last March, according to LSEG data, indicating a belief among traders that the euro has further to fall.

Deutsche Bank global head of FX research George Saravelos said in a note on Tuesday that, roughly, for every combined 10 per cent rise in Brent and European natural gas prices, the euro loses around 0.8 per cent in value.

"This means that a combined move to US$100/barrel in both Brent and (natural gas futures) would take euro/dollar down to roughly US$1.13 on current sensitivities," he said in his note.

Global oil and gas prices have jumped as the strikes on Iran disrupt energy exports from the Middle East, with Teheran's attacks on ships and energy facilities in response closing navigation in the Gulf and forcing production stoppages from Qatar to Iraq.

Elsewhere, the pound rose 0.1 per cent to US$1.337. Sterling has been hit hard by the prospect of a protracted rise in energy prices given that British inflation, at 3 per cent, is still well above the Bank of England's 2 per cent target.

The dollar index, which tracks the US currency's performance against six others, dipped 0.2 per cent to 98.86, having earlier reached its strongest level since November 28.

Against the yen, the dollar was down 0.37 per cent at 157.2 yen.

The US currency also fell 0.3 per cent versus the Chinese yuan to 6.899 in offshore trade, after PMI data for February diverged, with official gauges recording a slump in activity even as a private-sector counterpart blew past estimates.
