

Postgraduate trends in Asia

Over next decade, India to dominate as a student source

India is expected to be one of the fastest growing sources of international postgraduate students over the next decade.

Despite demographics, China to continue boom

China is forecast to experience strong growth in outbound postgraduates. By 2024, it is still likely to be the largest source of outbound postgraduates, with India catching up quickly in second place.

Significant postgraduate growth in other key nations

Nigeria, Saudi Arabia, Pakistan and Indonesia are forecast to post substantive increases in outbound postgraduates.

The US as fastest-growing postgraduate host destination

With an expected increase of 154,000 students to 2024, the US is forecast to continue to dominate as a host market, in absolute terms. The UK is forecast to be the second-fastest growing destination market in absolute terms, with expected growth of 83,000 to 2024.