

How women defer financial decisions around the world

Most high net worth women in Singapore are leaving long-term financial planning to their spouses who they think know better, according to a report by UBS Global Wealth Management.

