Greenback at one-week high; euro, sterling lose ground

THE US dollar held near a one-week high on Wednesday (May 13) on renewed uncertainty in the Middle East and as traders digested a hotter-than-expected US inflation print and closely watched the yen.

The euro slipped 0.2 per cent to US$1.171675 and sterling traded 0.2 per cent lower at US$1.3524.

The risk-sensitive Australian dollar was unchanged at US$0.72410 and the New Zealand dollar traded down 0.3 per cent at US$0.59345.

The US dollar index, which tracks the greenback against a basket of six major currencies, was up 0.1 per cent at 98.449, its highest level since May 5.

Meanwhile, oil prices rose 0.2 per cent and stayed firmly above the US$100 mark, with Brent crude futures last trading at US$108 a barrel. Hopes for a peace deal in the Middle East have dwindled after US President Donald Trump said a ceasefire with Iran was "on life support" after Teheran rejected a US proposal to end the war.

Trump said on Tuesday that he does not think he will need Beijing's help to end the war with Iran ahead of his meeting with Chinese President Xi Jinping.

"What's going on in the Strait of Hormuz... that's the main driver of the background," said Tommy von Brömsen, FX strategist at Handels-banken in Stockholm.

"The longer this goes on the more central banks are going to find themselves in a more difficult situation."

The US consumer price index (CPI) rose 3.8 per cent in the 12 months through April, the biggest year-on-year increase since May 2023, as the oil shock triggered by the war pushed prices higher.

Yields on the US two-year note, which typically moves in step with Federal Reserve interest rate expectations, and the benchmark 10-year note hovered near seven-week highs; they last traded at 3.9854 per cent and 4.4629 per cent, respectively.

Markets have largely priced out any chance of a rate cut from the Fed this year, while expectations for a hike of at least 25 basis points at the central bank's December meeting rose to 35 per cent, according to CME's Fed-Watch Tool.

Commerzbank FX analysts said the extent of the jump in CPI was surprising and interesting ahead of Fed chair Jerome Powell's term ending on Friday. On Tuesday, the US Senate confirmed Kevin Warsh to a 14-year term as Federal Reserve governor, an important step towards him succeeding Powell.

"The big question in the coming months will be whether Warsh can gather enough allies within the FOMC to push through early rate cuts," the Commerzbank analysts said in a report.

The Japanese yen fell 0.1 per cent to 157.77 per dollar. A sudden move stronger on Tuesday had stoked speculation of a "rate check" by authorities, which is often a precursor to a currency intervention. Japan's recent foreign exchange intervention may have kept the yen from sliding below the 160-per-dollar mark but it is unlikely to have a lasting effect in propping up the sagging currency, former Bank of Japan (BOJ) governor Haruhiko Kuroda said on Wednesday.

On Tuesday, US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent said the US and Japan believe that excess volatility in the currency market is undesirable, comments that were seen as offering some support to Tokyo's recent round of intervention to prop up the yen.

On Wednesday, the BOJ said that Bessent did not meet with governor Kazuo Ueda during his visit to Tokyo.

China's yuan traded around 6.79 per dollar, near its strongest level since February 2023, ahead of Trump's trip to Beijing. REUTERS
