Greenback fluctuates around one-week high

THE US dollar rose to its highest level in a week against major currencies on Monday (Apr 20) before paring gains to trade little changed as renewed US-Iran tensions caused uncertainty in markets about the chances of a peace deal.

The United States said on Sunday that it had seized an Iranian cargo ship that tried to run its blockade, while Iran said it would retaliate, stoking fears about a resumption of hostilities.

Teheran also said it would not participate in a second round of negotiations that the US had hoped to kick off before its two-week ceasefire with Iran expires on Tuesday.

"The weekend escalation revives the geopolitical risk premium just as markets had started pricing a peace dividend," said Charu Chanana, chief investment strategist at Saxo, adding that higher oil "is not just an energy story, it is a growth-and-rates story".

The euro was last up 0.1 per cent at US$1.1773 after hitting a one-week low of US$1.1729 earlier in the session, while sterling was 0.05 per cent higher at US$1.3526. The risk-sensitive Australian dollar fell 0.1 per cent to US$0.7163.

The dollar index, which measures the US currency against six peers, recouped some of its recent losses to rise to its highest in a week at 98.47, before dipping to trade at 98.22.

The index is down 1.6 per cent in April. It had surged 2.3 per cent in March on haven demand after the war broke out.

Analysts said that the restrained moves in the currency markets, with the US dollar giving back some of its early gains, pointed to lingering optimism that despite the setbacks over the weekend a resolution could still be on the cards.

Chris Weston, head of research at Pepperstone, said that while the tone is risk-off to start the week, the move so far "appears orderly rather than indicative of a major volatility shock".

He added: "Market participants understand that the path to a formal agreement was unlikely to be linear and remains vulnerable to sudden changes, so market players won't be wholly surprised by a sentiment shift."

Now in its eighth week, the war has created the most severe shock to energy supplies in history, sending oil prices surging because of the de facto closure of the Strait of Hormuz, which typically handles about a fifth of the world's oil shipments.

The United States has maintained a blockade of Iranian ports, while Iran has lifted and then reimposed its own blockade on marine traffic passing through the crucial waterway. That spurred a rebound in oil prices on Monday.

Brent crude futures jumped 4.9 per cent to US$94.79 a barrel.

US West Texas Intermediate was at US$88.77 a barrel, up 5.8 per cent.

"The key is still the Strait of Hormuz for many, and hopes that we could see the US and Iran sit down at the negotiating table before the ceasefire ends now seem remote," said Nick Twidale, chief market strategist at ATFX Global in Sydney. "For now, I think we will see further downside moves for risk in the coming sessions."

The yen weakened to 158.83 per dollar, although it remained below the crucial 160 level that traders worry could lead to intervention to support the Japanese currency. REUTERS
