Singapore stocks fall 0.9% as banks drag; Seatrium rises on earnings

The iEdge Singapore Next 50 Index slips 0.6% to 1,517.79. BY RENALD YEO

LOCAL stocks closed lower on Thursday (Feb 26), weighed down by declines in the banking counters.

The benchmark Straits Times Index (STI) fell 0.9 per cent, or 43.35 points, to 4,964.38. The iEdge Singapore Next 50 Index slipped 0.6 per cent, or 8.8 points, to 1,517.79.

All three local banks ended in the red: DBS shed 0.9 per cent to S$57.16, OCBC eased 0.3 per cent to S$21.34, and UOB declined 0.6 per cent to S$36.76.

Across the broader market, losers outnumbered gainers 375 to 254, with 2.1 billion securities worth S$2.5 billion traded.

Seatrium was the top performer on the blue-chip index, climbing 3.2 per cent, or S$0.07, to S$2.28.

This was after the offshore and marine player reported a 48.3 per cent increase in net profit to S$179.3 million for the second half ended Dec 31, 2025. Full-year net profit doubled to S$323.6 million.

UOL was the worst-performing STI constituent, sliding 6.1 per cent, or S$0.69, to S$10.68.

Separately, fresh factory output data released on Thursday showed that Singapore's manufacturing output surged 16.6 per cent year on year in January, driven by a jump in electronics production, and beating private-sector economists' forecasts.

"Looking ahead, February 2026 industrial production is likely to be biased lower (likely towards the 5 per cent handle) due to the Chinese New Year holidays," wrote OCBC chief economist Selena Ling in a note.

Elsewhere in the region, markets were mixed.

Hong Kong's Hang Seng Index fell 1.4 per cent, Japan's Nikkei 225 rose

Selena Ling, OCBC chief economist

0.3 per cent, South Korea's Kospi gained 3.7 per cent, while Malaysia's FTSE Bursa Malaysia KLCI edged down 0.4 per cent.

Yen reclaims some ground after BOJ leaves door open for near-term rate hikes

THE yen bounced off lows on Thursday (Feb 26) as investors assessed the latest signals from the Bank of Japan for clues on the rate outlook, while taking stock of Nvidia's earnings for insights into demand for artificial intelligence.

The Japanese currency was up 0.2 per cent against the US dollar at 155.99 yen, on course to snap a two-day losing streak, after BOJ governor Kazuo Ueda kept prospects of a near-term rate hike alive.

In an interview with the Yomiuri newspaper, Ueda said the central bank will look at data at its March and April meetings to decide the path for interest rates, days after a report that Japanese Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi had expressed reservations about additional monetary tightening during her meeting with the governor. "It's kind of a push and pull, and the BOJ is walking a very fine line," said David Chao, Invesco's global market strategist for Asia Pacific.

"However, we still believe that the central bank will hike rates twice this year, and the yen is likely to be one of the best performing currencies," he added.

The Japanese government on Wednesday also appointed two academics who are viewed as strong advocates of economic stimulus, to the central bank's board.

"Leaving yen depreciation unchecked carries political risks, and FX intervention alone would be insufficient. Policy inaction remains unlikely," analysts at BofA Securities wrote.

Meanwhile, hawkish board member Hajime Takata said in a speech that the central bank must focus on the risk of an inflation overshoot in guiding monetary policy and called for a gradual rise in interest rates. Futures tracking the S&P 500 and the tech-heavy Nasdaq in the US dipped 0.1 per cent each, even after solid quarterly results from Nvidia.

The AI heavyweight extended its run of strong earnings but did not spark an immediate shift towards risk-on sentiment.

The US dollar index, which measures the greenback's strength against a basket of six currencies, was steady at 97.678.

Financial markets continue to believe almost unanimously that US interest rates are going nowhere at the Federal Reserve's next meeting.

Fed funds futures are pricing an implied 98 per cent probability the US central bank will keep rates on hold at its next two-day meeting on March 18, little changed from a day earlier, according to the CME Group's FedWatch tool.

The yield on the US 10-year Treasury bond was up 0.2 basis point at 4.0518 per cent. Uncertainty also persisted over how US President Donald Trump would respond to the Supreme Court's ruling on Feb 20 that struck down his emergency tariffs. Geopolitics also remained in focus for markets as the US and Iran prepared for another round of negotiations in Geneva to resolve their longstanding nuclear dispute.

The euro was largely unchanged at US$1.18. European Central Bank president Christine Lagarde said policymakers continue to expect inflation to stabilise at their target rate of 2 per cent in the near term.

The British pound inched 0.3 per cent lower at US$1.35. Domestic political risks remained a key driver, with traders focused on the local election in Manchester, widely viewed as a key test for Prime Minister Keir Starmer and his Labour Party.

In China, the renminbi strengthened against the dollar in offshore trade, rising 0.3 per cent to 6.8344 yuan, the strongest level in almost three years despite the central bank signalling it wanted to curb the currency's rapid gains. REUTERS
