The worst performer among STI constituents was Wilmar International, which fell 4.2 per cent or S$0.15 to close at S$3.44.

The other two local banks also ended higher. OCBC hit a fresh high as well, rising 2.9 per cent or S$0.68 to S$24.08, while UOB was up 2.1 per cent or S$0.80 at S$38.40.

Across the broader market, gainers trailed losers 335 to 347, after 1.9 billion securities worth S$2.9 billion changed hands.

Key regional indices were mixed. Hong Kong's Hang Seng Index gained 2.5 per cent, Japan's Nikkei 225 index fell 0.3 per cent and South Korea's Kospi was up 0.2 per cent.

The STI gains, led by the local banks, follow recent announcements by DBS and OCBC of plans to boost their wealth offerings.

DBS on Monday unveiled plans to launch 18 new and 36 upgraded Asia-Pacific wealth centres by end-2027, while OCBC's private bank, Bank of Singapore, intends to sharpen its focus on ultra-high-net-worth clients.

The continued wealth momentum of local lenders was cited as a tailwind for the sector in a RHB report from last Thursday; the brokerage upgraded its rating on the three Singapore banks to "overweight" from "neutral".

Singapore banks "appear to be enjoying renewed investor interest amid a shift in rate expectations, continued strong wealth momentum and fee income generation", RHB analysts noted.

Greenback trades in tight range; euro rises

THE US dollar traded in a tight range on Tuesday (Jun 2) as investors watched for progress on a potential deal to reopen the Strait of Hormuz, while awaiting US economic data which could shape the Federal Reserve's policy path.

A peace deal between the United States and Iran would ease pressure on currencies of oil-importing countries such as Japan, while curbing safe-haven demand for the greenback.

Investors have treated news of any progress toward ending the US-Israeli war with caution, given the fragility of a ceasefire between Washington and Teheran that was struck in early April.

The dollar index, which measures the US currency against six peers, was down 0.05 per cent at 99.13. It has hovered in a narrow range of about 98.9 to 99.5 since May 15.

"By (Monday) evening, a sense of relief had returned as (US President Donald Trump) had seemingly secured another ceasefire in Lebanon," said Michael Pfister, foreign-exchange strategist at Commerzbank.

He added: "The foreign-exchange market is nevertheless likely to be dominated by news of the situation today. But any news of setbacks in the negotiations will be met with considerable caution."

The US Labor Department is set to release job openings data ahead of Friday's closely watched monthly employment report. Markets are betting that the Federal Reserve's next move will be to raise its benchmark interest rate.

Eurozone inflation data streng-

Japan's Finance Minister Satsuki Katayama says the authorities are ready to respond in the currency market as needed.

On the inflation outlook, Carsten Brzeski, head of macro at ING, said that the pass-through of higher energy and input prices to final consumption "will be limited due to a lack of ability and willingness of consumers to actually pay for these higher prices".

Paul Mackel, global head of forex research at HSBC, noted that loose US financial conditions, reversing safe-haven support and the Fed sounding patient has "kept the dollar in check".

"However, a turning point is nearing, as much will increasingly depend on key economic data and what central banks say and do next, in particular the Federal Reserve," he added, pointing to the Fed's policy meeting scheduled in two weeks.

In Japan, Finance Minister Satsuki Katayama said on Tuesday that the authorities stood ready to respond in the currency market as needed and refrained from commenting on recent exchange-rate moves. The yen was a tad lower at 159.72 against the greenback, close to the 160 level widely seen by markets as a trigger for intervention.

Markets are also waiting for a speech by Bank of Japan governor Kazuo Ueda on Wednesday for possible signals as to whether the central bank will proceed with a rate increase next week.

Derek Halpenny, head of research, global markets at MUFJ, said that action "remains likely", and that while inflation has eased, "the risk of being behind the curve is rising". REUTERS
