Singapore shares fall as Trump holds off on some tariffs; STI slips 0.1%

Across the broader market, gainers beat losers 311 to 221, after 1.3b securities worth S$1.2b change hands. BY TAY PECK GEK AND CHONG XIN WEI

SINGAPORE stocks failed to sustain the momentum at market open on Tuesday (Feb 4), with the benchmark Straits Times Index (STI) down 3.46 points or 0.1 per cent at 3,823.01 at the close.

Across the broader market, gainers beat decliners 311 to 221, after 1.3 billion securities worth S$1.2 billion changed hands.

The STI showing bucked the trend seen in regional bourses, after US President Donald Trump delayed the start of tariffs on Mexico and Canada for a month. But those on China were not deferred, triggering retaliatory moves from Chinese authorities.

"The latest escalation in trade tensions is snuffing out optimism, fuelling a flight to safety, and keeping markets trapped in a cycle of volatility-driven whiplash," said Stephen Innes, managing partner at SPI Asset Management.

Singapore may suffer collateral damage as Trump's tariffs pave the way for a global trade war, analysts told The Business Times.

The Republic is unlikely to be on the "hit list for direct tariffs" from the US, but the city-state could still be affected indirectly if there is any "degradation" in economic integration, global supply chains and world trade, Minister for Foreign Affairs Vivian Balakrishnan said in Parliament on Tuesday.

Sats shares declined 1.8 per cent or S$0.06 to S$3.29, as the revocation of a rule – one that previously allowed small packages valued under US$800 to enter the US without incurring tariffs – could hit the air cargo handler more than the tariff hikes.

Shares of CapitaLand Investment climbed 1.7 per cent or S$0.04 to S$2.46, after the asset manager announced a land parcel investment in Osaka, Japan.

US dollar steady as China tariffs kick in; euro falls

THE greenback held its ground on Tuesday (Feb 4) as US President Donald Trump's tariff threats were interpreted more as a negotiating tactic rather than an end goal, a day after he suspended planned measures against Mexico and Canada. However, the Trump administration imposed additional 10 per cent tariffs on imports from China effective from early Tuesday and currency analysts said they expected high sensitivity to tariff developments and volatility to persist.

The dollar index, a measure of the value of the greenback relative to a weighted basket of six major foreign currencies, was up 0.1 per cent at 108.5 while the Canadian dollar and Mexican peso weakened, after Monday's rebound. The euro declined slightly, with Washington threatening that the European Union may be next in line for trade levies, which are widely expected to push up US inflation, supporting the dollar by keeping US interest rates higher for longer.

"That Trump wants to negotiate is clear," said Marcus Widén, an economist at SEB.

"But at the same time, there is a basic idea that tariff revenues should finance tax cuts, and from that perspective, one might wonder if one can go back on tariff plans every time."

Beijing on Tuesday imposed tariffs on some US imports in a swift response to new American duties on Chinese goods, raising the stakes in a showdown between the world's top two economies.

"Overall, the (Chinese) measures are relatively modest," said Lee Hardman, senior currency analyst at MUFG.

"It suggests that China is wary of pushing back too hard against Trump's latest tariffs and is leaving the door open for future negotiations," he added, recalling that the 10 per cent tariff hike for China could just be the first step after Trump threatened to raise tariffs as high as 60 per cent.

Analysts also flagged that it will be hard for China and the US to agree on what Trump demands.

The yuan edged up 0.1 per cent to 7.30 per dollar in offshore trading. There is no official yuan trading until Wednesday, with mainland markets still closed for Chinese New Year festivities.

The Australian dollar, which often acts as a liquid proxy for the yuan because the Australian economy is highly exposed to China, fell 0.3 per cent to US$0.6206, well above Monday's low of US$0.6085, the weakest level since April 2020.

The euro dropped 0.2 per cent to US$1.032, with market participants watching parity.

"The maximum trade war risk premium seen during the first Trump administration was six big figures which would take the euro/dollar to parity," said George Saravelos, head of forex research at Deutsche Bank.

"A European Central Bank (terminal rate) repricing down to 1.5 per cent, with the Fed (policy path) unchanged, would take the euro/dollar further down to 0.98-0.99 based on current betas."

Several analysts recently said that US tariffs would have a deflationary effect on the euro area.

Money markets increased their bets on ECB rate cuts on Monday, pricing in a depo rate at 1.85 per cent in December from 1.95 per cent late on Friday. They are currently discounting 1.9 per cent.
