Singapore shares slide amid tech bubble jitters; STI down 0.1%

Across the broader market, decliners outnumber advancers 326 to 236, after 1.5b securities worth S$2.1b change hands. BY NAVENE ELANGO VAN

LOCAL shares ended Wednesday (Nov 5) lower, on the back of a sharp sell-off overnight of tech and artificial intelligence (AI) stocks on Wall Street.

Charu Chanana, chief investment strategist at Saxo, said that AI valuations are under scrutiny, with investors questioning whether their growth can justify their lofty valuations. She added that markets could be entering a phase of valuation correction, rather than further multiple expansion.

Key indices in the region also closed lower. South Korea's Kospi fell 2.9 per cent and Japan's Nikkei slipped 2.5 per cent. Australia's ASX 200 declined 0.1 per cent, while Hong Kong's Hang Seng Index was down 0.1 per cent.

In Singapore, the benchmark Straits Times Index (STI) fell 0.1 per cent or 5.6 points to close at 4,417.12. Meanwhile, the iEdge Singapore Next 50 Index lost 1.2 per cent or 16.92 points to 1,443.28.

Yangzijiang Shipbuilding was the biggest decliner on the STI, falling 2.9 per cent or S$0.10 to S$3.33 after BlackRock sold 37.8 million shares.

Local telco Singtel was the top blue-chip gainer, rising 0.7 per cent or S$0.03 to

S$4.27. The three local banks ended mixed. OCBC was up 0.2 per cent or S$0.03 at S$17.06, but UOB fell 0.1 per cent or S$0.05 to S$34.87. DBS ended flat at S$53.50.

Capitaland Integrated Commercial Trust remained the most actively traded counter on the STI by volume, with 50.2 million units worth S$115.6 million traded. The counter fell 0.9 per cent or S$0.02 to S$2.31.

Across the broader market, decliners outnumbered advancers 326 to 236, after 1.5 billion securities worth S$2.1 billion changed hands.

Saxo's Chanana said that several scenarios could play out, depending on market conditions. For instance, if there are no major macroeconomic shocks, and the US Federal Reserve continues to hint at easing its monetary policy, the market could pull back modestly. However, rising yields or slowdown in AI spending could lead to a deeper decline in markets.

"Investors may wish to balance opportunities with caution, recognising both potential upside and downside risks," she said.

Early rush to safe haven currencies peters out

RISK aversion blew through foreign-exchange markets in Asia on Wednesday (Nov 5), but had all but dissipated by the end of the European morning, with the safe-haven yen and Swiss franc erasing gains and most currencies broadly steady.

The yen gained as much as 0.5 per cent at one point, before last trading flat at 153.62 per dollar. The franc likewise climbed 0.3 per cent versus the dollar at one point, but was last steady at 0.8099 francs to the greenback.

The risk-off wave that hit Wall Street overnight swept through Asian equity markets, triggering losses of as much as 4.7 per cent for Japan's Nikkei and as much as 6.2 per cent for South Korea's Kospi. US losses were triggered by a tech-led sell-off as worries about stretched valuations spiralled into a rush for the exits.

But that too faded in Europe, with shares down around 0.2 per cent and US share futures also about 0.2 per cent softer.

That left investors looking ahead to US private payrolls data later in the day.

While that normally does not have a long-term impact on markets, with non-farm payrolls data cancelled due to the US government shutdown it will take on greater significance this month.

There is also services activity data due, and either "could impact FX and bonds if the data causes expectations around the Fed to shift", said Kenneth Broux, head of corporate research FX and rates at Societe Generale.

The Federal Reserve cut rates by 25 basis points as expected last month, but chair Jerome Powell said the absence of economic data would make the central bank more cautious about cutting rates again in December.

The euro was steady at US$1.1491, holding below the notable US$1.15 level it dropped through on Tuesday to its lowest since Aug 1.

That left the dollar index at 100.16, stalled ahead of 100.35, its 200-day moving average, which Broux said was a "pivotal" technical level.

Sterling steadied after its recent selloff, last up a touch on the day on the dollar at US$1.3041, but still near multi-month lows on the dollar and multi-year lows on the euro. The Bank of England

(BOE) meets on Thursday, and with market pricing showing a roughly one-in-three chance of a 25 basis point rate cut, whatever the BOE decides could cause a knee-jerk reaction in the pound.

Sweden's Riksbank's decision to hold rates steady, as expected, did little for the Swedish crown, which was marginally softer at 11.01 per euro and 9.58 per dollar.

Norway's central bank was also scheduled to meet on Thursday.

Leading cryptocurrency bitcoin rose 2 per cent to around US$102,400, after bouncing back from earlier losses. It slid 6.1 per cent on Tuesday to below US$99,000 for the first time since June 22. REUTERS
