Singapore blue chips rise 2.2% after Trump says Iran war will end 'very soon'

The Straits Times Index is up 104.03 points at 4,860.64. BY TAY PECK GEK

BLUE-CHIP counters in Singapore rebounded on Tuesday (Mar 10) after US President Donald Trump said overnight that the war with Iran would be over "very soon".

The Straits Times Index (STI) rose 104.03 points or 2.2 per cent to 4,860.64. The iEdge Singapore Next 50 Index, however, slid 2.7 per cent or 38.67 points to 1,417.06.

China-based shipbuilder Yangzijiang Shipbuilding was the only STI constituent that closed lower, falling 1.2 per cent or $0.05 to $4.05.

Another company in the Yangzijiang stable, Yangzijiang Financial, was the worst performer on the iEdge Singapore Next 50 Index. The investment and fund management company fell 3.8 per cent or $0.01 to $0.25.

Hong Kong-based Jardine Matheson was the STI's biggest gainer on Tuesday, rising 7.7 per cent or US$5.59 to US$78.40.

The banking trio all finished higher. DBS gained 2.5 per cent or $1.34 to $55.65; OCBC was up 2.3 per cent or $0.47 at $20.93; and UOB rose 2.1

Trump's comments that the war in the Middle East would end soon drove oil prices lower, following a surge past US$100 a barrel that fanned inflation fears.

per cent or $0.74 to $36.25.

Across the broader market, gainers beat decliners 457 to 157, with 1.6 billion securities worth S$2.4 billion transacted.

Trump's comments that the war in the Middle East would end soon drove oil prices lower, following a surge past US$100 a barrel that fanned inflation fears.

"We're looking to keep the oil prices down," the US president said. "They went artificially up because of this excursion."

The closure of the Strait of Hormuz – a narrow waterway that normally handles a fifth of the world's oil – has seen Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates reducing output as storage fills.

US dollar rally stalls on hopes of an easing in Iran war

THE US dollar took a breather on Tuesday (Mar 10) as investors swung between hopes for a de-escalation in the US-Israeli war on Iran and concerns that any such optimism could be premature.

US President Donald Trump said the war could end well before the timeline he initially laid out, but threatened to escalate attacks should Teheran block oil shipments from the Strait of Hormuz.

In response, Iran's Revolutionary Guards dismissed Trump's remarks as "nonsense", and said the blockade would continue until attacks from the US and Israel end.

However, equities advanced and oil prices retreated from over three-year highs, underscoring how eager investors were to seize on any hint of good news.

"I don't think the market's being too optimistic. I think what happened last week was just an overreaction," said Nick Kennedy, forex strategist at Lloyds.

"Trump's not the most consistent messenger of what he intends to do, but investors are assessing the outlook more practically."

Governments could step in with oil reserve releases and the approaching midterms might also prompt Trump to moderate his approach, he added.

Energy ministers from the Group of Seven were set to discuss soaring energy prices on a call on Tuesday, while a group of European Union leaders were expected to do so later in the day, officials said.

The safe-haven dollar slipped 0.1 per cent to US$1.1645 against the euro, and was 0.1 per cent stronger at 157.49 yen. The dollar index, which measures the greenback against a basket of six peers, fell 0.2 per cent, but rebounded from a one-week low of 98.49 earlier.

The dollar has been traders' shelter of choice given that the US, as a major oil producer, is better positioned to withstand energy price shocks compared to other economies that rely on imports.

"Higher prices result in higher income for US oil producers and exporters, and the increase in prices will also likely arrest the depreciation of the dollar that has been ongoing since 'Liberation Day'," said Jefferies' chief US economist Thomas Simons.

A Deutsche Bank analysis on Monday suggested larger market moves out of risky assets would only happen if oil prices were to stay at higher levels and there was a policy pivot from central banks, alongside tangible signs of a broader economic slowdown.

"How close are we to meeting those thresholds? Much closer than a week ago," said strategist Henry Allen.

"But on several metrics we aren't quite there yet, which explains why equities aren't yet seeing bear-market declines, like we saw in 2022," he said, referring to the aftermath of an energy shock triggered by Russia's invasion of Ukraine.

Sterling recovered from a Monday dip to trade 0.1 per cent higher at US$1.3455.

Still, investors are worried that a sustained spike in fuel prices could curtail global growth by acting as a tax on business and consumption, while at the same time pushing central banks away from easing rates. REUTERS
